RYANS celebrating 23 years of glory

After the successful presence of more than two decades in the industry, RYANS Computers Limited has entered its 23 years of glory. It has been a number one retail chain in the sale of computer goods and IT products in Bangladesh. From 2000, with only one showroom at IDB Bhaban in Dhaka, it has now set up 17 active branches across the country.

Ryans ensures the fastest, safe and reliable services to its customers. For example multiple payment options, EMI facility, delivery facility in 64 districts, 24/7 online support, best possible customer service and after sales service, warranty assurance, terminal services etc. Customer count statistics will also show its upward position. According to last year's statistics, this retail chain has reached more than 3,00,000 customers and that number is increasing day by day. In addition to the consumer market, it is successfully serving corporate clients by providing enterprise business solutions. Apart from that, two of its sisters concern RYANS ARCHIVE and RYANS CARE functioning as a media monitoring company and specialized service center, respectively.

OpenAI reveals 3D model-building AI tool

Artificial intelligence research lab OpenAI has announced details on its latest technology that will see huge improvements to 3D rendering. OpenAI is the company behind text-to-image generator, DALL-E, which has now turned its attention to translate text prompts into 3D point clouds, which it will call POINT-E. According to a paper published by OpenAI, POINT-E “produces 3D models in only 1-2 minutes on a single GPU”, compared with other current solutions which can take hours and require multiple GPUs. OpenAI promises to have trained the artificial intelligence on several million 3D models and their metadata, though its use cases for now remain fairly limited. One such example includes rendering real-world objects for 3D printing, though as the technology develops and becomes more refined, it's likely that we'll see it being used in more advanced cases such as gaming and even television.

Meta is making the Quest 2's GPU more powerful

Meta is giving Quest 2 developers 7 percent more GPU compute power to work with, meaning apps and games on the headset you already own might look a little bit better sometime soon. For developers, the increased power should “improve your ability to leverage higher pixel density without substantially reducing the resolution in order to hit the target frame rate,” Meta wrote in a blog post. Phrased a different way, “this means your apps’ visuals will look even better—without sacrificing resolution quality,” Meta says. The change is possible thanks to the Quest using a new 525MHz GPU frequency, which is up from the previous 490MHz, and Meta’s “dynamic clocking system” will automatically up the frequency when it senses an app could use it.

Apple is reportedly working on some super-powered new Pro monitors

Apple is reportedly developing “multiple new external monitors”, which may include an update to the Pro Display XDR. The Pro Display XDR is a 32-inch flat-panel computer monitor, launched in 2019, alongside the latest iteration of the Mac Pro. The high-end monitor, which boasted a 6K resolution, certainly doesn't come cheap, at a starting cost of $4,999, with the "Pro Stand" to hold it up coming in at $999 alone. The new monitors will include Apple Silicon, according to sources reported by Bloomberg, adding that the new pieces of hardware will rely less on the resources of the machine running it than previous models. The Pro Display XDR could also reportedly be released after the upcoming new Mac Pro, as the monitor is running behind it in the development cycle.

However, no more specific information about when the new monitor might land was revealed, nor were any additional technical details. We could also be seeing a sequel to Apple's Studio Display monitor.
